

The Associated Press

August 10, 1989 P.1.
A new life in a new land

Camelia Popescu Sorina, a Romanian defector, shows off her newborn daughter, Natasha, at a hospital in Negotin, Yugoslavia. Sorina was nine months pregnant with Natasha when she fled her homeland by swimming across the Danube River. She gave birth shortly afterward. Sorina hopes that she can soon be reunited with her husband, who escaped earlier to Austria, and introduce him to his new baby.